

ABSTRACT

A communication system including a network and at least two terminal units connected thereto. Each terminal unit includes a session controlling unit for controlling a session for enabling transmission/receiving of voice, image, handwritten data to/from the remote terminal unit individually, and a display unit for displaying the 5 image and the handwritten data. The image data and the handwritten data are overlapped and displayed on a display of the display unit.